

Welcome!

Welcome to the students, teachers, and librarians of Huntington Park, California! We're happy you are using Infotopia.info and Kidtopia.info for your research needs!

http://www.infotopia.info/primary\_sources.html

Are you using Primary Sources in your research? You can easily find them on our Primary Sources resource page. Here are some examples that you might want to use with your students.

Do you know where to easily find a famous speech to use with your classes? Search from A to Z or take a look at the "Top 100 Speeches".

infotopia The Water Cycle

infotopia Landforms

As promised, we have completed two new resource pages on the water cycle and landforms. Be sure hover your mouse over each resource and read the pop up tag. These resources range from very easy to understand, to more in depth coverage of the topic. Included in the resources are interactive presentations, charts, maps, and more!

Atlantic Slave Trade

Are your students researching the Atlantic Slave Trade? They can read about Amistad, the African Slave Trade and the Middle Passage, they can view over 1200 historical images about the slave trade, or they can read letters and interviews from slaves, or examine maps and charts about slaves and the slave trade.

Are you looking for a great poem to share with your class? Are your students competing in poetry contests? Our Poetry resource page offers everything from audios of poets reading their own poetry to biographies of famous poets and AP poetry terms. Find poems for any occasion on poets.org, or find funny poems and "rate a poem" in gigglepoetry.com.

What are the most popular poems on poets.org? You can click on many of the poems and hear them read by the poet. Is your favorite poem there?
